Funding Adventist Worldwide Movement – Bulletin series, Part 2 – Church Structure January 31, 2024, | Columbia, Md. | by Randy Robinson. During the second half of the nineteenth century, our Seventh-day Adventist Church pioneers struggled with how to create—and even if they should create—a defined organizational structure. After significant debate and prayer, a church structure was created. Beginning with a collection of members constituting a local church, the structure expands into a local conference, which is a collection of local churches. A collection of local conferences then constitutes a union conference. A collection of union conferences constitutes a division. Finally, the collection of divisions constitutes the General Conference (GC). Today in the NAD there are approximately 6,000 local churches, 59 local conferences, and nine union conferences. The NAD is one of 13 divisions of the General Conference. With that sort of infrastructure, much money is needed. While there are other sources of income available to the church, the comments in this article are confined to the predominant source of income which is tithe. Continued next Sabbath.
